

Regional Manager, Health, Safety & Wellbeing

Sydney region – based in Leichhardt

UnitingCare Ageing is the single largest provider of aged care services in NSW and the ACT. These services are organised through six geographical regions and are lead by Regional Directors who report to the Director of UnitingCare Ageing. The Sydney region operates residential and community based aged care services in the Inner West and Eastern Suburbs of Sydney and employs 750 staff. The organisation envisages significant growth and change over the coming five years.

To support this transformation, UnitingCare Ageing Sydney region is seeking an experienced strategic yet practical Manager Health, Safety & Wellbeing to drive the ongoing development of an outstanding safety culture, the implementation of OH&S systems and initiatives throughout the Sydney region and someone that will champion best practice principles in OH&S.

Reporting to the Regional Director, your experience will demonstrate an ability to work at both the micro and strategic level, with proven influencing capacity at all levels. You will possess strong communication and negotiation expertise, as well as all relevant technical knowledge, skills and tertiary qualifications in OH&S. You will be resilient and familiar with the challenges of driving culture change. Excellent remuneration package on offer.
